

March 2025

inCyber News NEWSLETTER

THE EDITO

Work environments have evolved considerably, and in the face of increasingly complex security threats, companies must rethink their access control strategies. The concept of Universal ZTNA (Zero Trust Network Access) is emerging as a promising response to these new challenges, unifying access protection whether from local networks, the cloud, or remote environments.

Read the edito

LA VIDÉO DU MOIS

In the age of AI and multicloud, securing the most sensitive data is a must! (FR)

L'INFO CYBER

DIGITAL SOVEREIGNTY
InCyber Forum – The European Metropolis of Lille : a win win partnership

Fabrice Deblock
Bernard Haesebroeck, Vice-President of the European Metropolis of Lille (MEL), discusses the partnership with the InCyber Forum. He also details the assets available to the metropolis for developing excellence in the “cybersecurity” sector.

Read the article

CYBER
Cybersecurity: What if we learned by playing? Four experts testify

Olivier Cimelière
To raise awareness among internal (and even external) audiences but also to explore scenarios while working on group dynamics, companies and institutions are increasingly turning to gamification to address cybersecurity issues as well as any crisis situation that puts an organization, or even a country, under tension.

Read the article

DIGITAL SOVEREIGNTY
2025, a decisive year for French cybersecurity

Jean-Noël de Galzain
In the face of American hegemony, French cybersecurity actors must join forces and offer alternative, comprehensive, and sovereign solutions. While initial value chains are emerging, it is now necessary to scale up to an industrial level.

Read the article

CYBER
ZERO DAY or “computing, the worm in the fruit of our modern societies?”

Olivier Parent
The Zero Day series is not explicitly a science fiction work. It's rather what we call Political Fiction, as the distance between the themes addressed in it and our reality is thin. Zero Day is a story that mixes politics and betrayals, computing and hacking, investigation and conspiracies... all with an American flavor.

Read the article

SAVE THE DATE

The INCYBER Forum is in 17 days!

April, 1st-2nd & 3rd 2025

There's still time to reserve your spot!
Beyond Zero Trust, Trust for All

Join the 17th edition of the InCyber Forum at Lille Grand Palais!

Register now!

